

THE VOORHEES RESOLUTION.

Senator Voorhees's resolution intended to give relief to farmers is on the right line, but is incomplete in as much as it fails to make clear the remedies proposed. The passage of the silver bill will be about as far as Congress at this session can go unless it makes arrangements for extension of direct trade with South America which will result in building a fleet of steamships. The revision of the tariff will have a good ultimate effect, but it will not be felt for many months to come. In the natural order of things the surplus now locked up in the Treasury will be reduced by $200,000,000 in the next two years. No one can estimate what a shrinkage there has been in money in the last few years. We mean money in circulation among the people. This naked statement of figures does not give the full amount, for the bonds that have been called in and canceled were really used as money. That is, while not passing from hand to hand like greenbacks, by depositing them the holder could obtain their face value to work with. We shall not become entirely enlightened until we agree upon some ratio of money to the people; and keep that amount in the country. This can be safely done even as the greenbacks circulate to-day. For instance, suppose it were to be decided that $1,000,000,000 more money was needed to carry on the business of the country. The way would be to issue that amount of greenbacks and place gold and silver to the amount of 33 per cent in a redemption fund. That would issue specie redemption to all those who prefer specie to paper. But the first thing to do is to put silver up to par, for that would enable the products of the United States to practically drive out from Europe the products of India and Egypt, and could not help but advance the prices at least 15 per cent. That advance would mean the difference between prosperity and ruin to hundreds of thousands of farmers and planters, and with a steady flow of $100,000,000 of gold and silver annually from our Western mines, entering directly the channels of trade would in ten years nearly double the available money of the country. The real saving grace is not in the wheat or cotton fields—they abound in a thousand lands—but in the mining states and Territories of the Union. It will be a great deal better for our Eastern friends if they comprehend that fact and act upon it.

The Times Berlin correspondent says of Bismarck's successor: Although a soldier of the first order, Caprivi, in the opinion of all his intimates, is very much more, and if personal appearance counts for anything, he is a man of great force of character and will. He bears a remarkable resemblance to Bismarck. The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: The Emperor likes Caprivi personally, but he is intractable by nature, and not likely to be Chancellor long.

A syndicate is endeavoring to secure the control of the liquor business at Tacoma and run the saloons, assuming responsibility for all infractions of the law traced to the places controlled by it. Ordinances governing the closing of saloons and the sale of liquors to minors and habitual drunkards are to be faithfully observed. The number of places where liquor will be sold will be restricted to twenty.
